Social Justice in the Manitoba ELA classroom: Teaching literacy for power and agency

Linda is recognized as one of the top educators of the Western United States who is the current Director of the Oregon Writing Projects. Through stories in her book Teaching for Joy and Justice: Reimagining the Language Arts Classroom, Linda Christensen draws on students' lives and the world to teach poetry, essay, narrative, and critical literacy skills. She will guide teachers as they plan for generating student writing rooted in an unwavering focus on language arts teaching for justice. Come and discover how to build the confidence and competence of struggling readers and writers.

This workshop is recommended for teachers of students in Grades 4 through 12.
