Literacy Instruction:
Blending the Tried and True with the Brand New

Kelly Gallagher has been a full-time English teacher since 1986, working most of those years at Magnolia High School in Anaheim, California. In addition to his work in the classroom, Kelly is the author of six books on adolescent literacy and he consults and provides training to professional educators on a local, national, and international level. In his most recent book, In the Best Interest of Students, Kelly takes the long view, reminding us of the need to stay true to what we know works in literacy instruction. He advocates:

- Dialing up the amount of reading and writing students are doing.
- Balancing rigorous, high-quality literature and non-fiction with high-interest, student-selected titles.
- Giving students much more choice when it comes to reading and writing activities.
- Encouraging readers to deepen their comprehension by moving beyond the "four corners of the text."
- Using modeling to enrich students' writing skills in the prewriting, drafting, and revision stages.
- Helping young writers to achieve more authenticity through the blending of genres.
- Resisting the de-emphasis of narrative and imaginative reading and writing.
- Providing students with more opportunities to sharpen their listening and speaking skills

Join us as we delve deeper into this essential question: What is in the best interest of our students?
